Josephine, 38 years old, Indonesian (Australian permanent resident); 5'6" tall and shapely slim, currently working in financial sector.

Jo is a dynamic person, open, enthusiastic and happy. She just loves life, interested in learning and developing knowledge and various interests. She holds good value, cares about others, loves the people around her.

Why is she single? Simple. She has no interests to be picked up at the bar, or putting her beautiful photos on the internet. She is looking for someone who is like her.

Amy; 41; Chinese, 5'6" tall and stylish. She is a successful business woman in hospitality industry.

Amy is smart and confident. The business is well established which provides a good life-style. Yet, she is still down to earth, keeping very low key.

Amy loves out-door activities, including walking, camping, swimming, etc. She has been to many countries in the world. She is very much loved in her community, because of her warm and friendly personality.

The happy couple of the month

We sincerely congratulate to Rodger and Cyndi. Who said distance is a problem? Before meeting, Rodger lived in New Zealand and Cyndi lived in Melbourne. Distance didn't stop their love for each other. Now they are married. A short time inconvenience turned to be a long term blessing. WELL DONE!!!!

Thank you

From our clients

Dear Metro Personal, I am thankful for all your help in finding my love. I am happy to announce that me and Ela are getting married. I am grateful for all you have done.

You'll never lose by loving

Christmas again?"

This is the expression from many people when Christmas is approaching. What have you done this year in searching for the love one? Maybe not much , except few casual flings in the club, or few meaningless contacts through internet?

While you are saying "I can't be bothered. It is just too hard"; " I don't want to be hurt again!"; " Love is too complicated. I don't have time for this", there are others took the positive steps to come out and found their happiness.

I wonder whether you ever felt lonely, loveless, or cold during holidays and festival times, or on your birthday, or when you achieve something, but no one to share, or when you are sick in bed alone. Yes, you can survive well without love, but you don't live well if your life is missing that important part.

You will never lose by loving. You only lose by holding back. Yes, you may have disappointment, hurt, or failure once you step out to search. But this has no difference when you decide to build a career, or open a business. No risk, no gain. If you want to achieve something, you need to prepare for the risk. However disappointment, hurt, or failure are the necessary step ladders , without which you can't climb high.

Christmas is coming. The year is ending. I hope you can be encouraged to look at your life, thinking about the life with love. We are not designed to be alone. Everyone needs someone. For the right person, every effort you are making is valuable. For the right person, all the pain you may suffer will be paid off. Love is too important to miss!!!
