The Taste of Shanghai at Sydney CBD , May 11, 2018

If you like Chinese food, you must hear about Shanghai cuisine. Shanghai cuisine is well-known by its rich flavour and variety. Many people said it is the best combination of various style of Chinese, including Cantonese, Sichuan, Beijing, etc. Shanghainese restaurants are popular both in and out of China.

Through its national restaurant chain, New Shanghai Group has successfully brought the best Shanghai food to Australia. In Sydney they have restaurants in Chatswood, Ashfield and Sydney CBD. Walking into their restaurants, you can also see the history of old Shanghai, the back alleyway with the touch of French.

We like to invite you to have a taste of Shanghai food in one of New Shanghai Group restaurants at Sydney CBD. It is on Friday, 11th May 2018 from 6.30—10pm. While having beautiful Shanghai food, you can mingle with nice people. Maybe one of them becomes the future someone for you.

Trust & Openness

We all like to be trusted, and we wish we could trust others also. To achieve that, one of the keys is the openness of a person's nature.

In life we all have the opportunity to know someone who has a wonderful open nature. They have the courage to tell their thoughts, emotions, even their vulnerability. They don't mind for others to see the inside of them. With these people, "what you see is what you get". Their open nature has won them trust and friendship from others.

To deal with people who are open and transparent is comfortable and enjoyable. Not only we can trust them easily, also we can open up equally. There is no need for imagination, or guessing.

At the same time, we also have the opportunity to meet the people who has problem to open up to the others. They feel vulnerable to reveal themselves, their emotions. Therefore they often say something in half way and let people work out the other half. They want to know others in details, but refuse to reveal themselves. No matter it is an important information, or something so insignificant, they simply don't want people to know too much.

I can understand these people. They are trying to protect themselves, or to avoid unnecessary mistakes. But in a way it does make people feel uncomfortable to get close to them and trust them. No one will know what kind of hidden agenda they may have.

Being open and transparent may sometimes attract negative impact. Sometimes it can even be hurtful. Being closed, and choosing not to reveal too much can be a good way to protect ourselves. However, when we enter into a relationship, we are looking for trust. We can't beg people to trust us, or give them our trust as a gift. The trust comes from our words and our deeds. While being open and transparent, we demonstrate our honesty and sincerity, showing that we want to have a good relationship. We also encourage others to do the same to us.

Being open and transparent certainly does not suggest that we have to tell people everything. Everyone has the right to keep things to himself. But if we have the courage to open up our thoughts, our emotions, our needs, to the people we are associating with, especially the people we are dating. we give a "fair go" to the relationship. Regardless what the result may be, we will win trust.
