Love at first sight II

“Love at first sight” happens more to men than women. Why?

In a relationship, usually women are slower to be excited. That is because women are not as visual, or as physical as men. That doesn't mean they don't appreciate good appearance. Just good looks may not excite them quickly. Women need more than the looks. They need to feel secure, which a lot of men understand. However men's understanding of women's security is mainly in finance. Men are providers. They know women need financial security. So if a man doesn't have a stable income, he doesn't have enough confidence to make a commitment to a woman.

However men's understanding is limited, because in modern times, financial security is not as important to women as in old times. Many women have their own career, stable job, or successful businesses. They can maintain their own financial independence. To them it doesn't make much difference whether the men they are dealing with are rich or not. But for most women mental and emotional security are far more important.

What is mental security for women? Mental security is when a challenge happens, a woman knows that her man will support her, be with her, providing good suggestions, or advise to her. She has faith in her man for his ability and wisdom. In our society, many smart and confident men can satisfy women's mental security. They don't have to be rich, or successful, nor handsome, but they need to have a positive attitude, wisdom and a sense of confidence. For these men, there will never be a lack of gorgeous women by their side.

Then what is the emotional security women are after?

We all know that women are driven by emotion. The emotion dominates their logic, judgement and decisions. In a relationship, women often judge and explain many things said and done by men with emotion. For instance, if a man gives compliments to a women, it can be interpreted as being romantic (emotion). If a man keeps ringing, asking the women out, it can be regarded that he is in love with her (emotion). There is a saying:” women wear their emotions on their sleeve”. Many men know that, so they play that well with women.

The emotional satisfaction, or security a woman needs are in two aspects: 1. He cares about me; 2. He is loyal to me.

There are many things for women to feel the care by their men. For instance: he can spend time to listen to her, giving her his undivided attention; or he can offer some physical service, like fixing her car, her house, etc ; or he can ring or send text messages to check whether she is alright; or he can take her out , buy flowers and gifts, etc. Women love all those things, because these actions indicate how much their men care about them, from which they feel the emotional security.

Of course being loyal is essential, too. Women are much more sensitive than men in this regard. They will watch and listen to their men when they describe other females, or when they talk to other females in public places, social functions, etc. Men's loyalty is women's security.

So we can see the above mentioned security will not be obtained through one or two meetings. Usually it takes quite a long time. That's why women do not get excited at the first or second date. "Love at first sight" happens far more often to men than to women.

However by saying that, many women love fairy-tale love stories. So "love at first sight" also happens to women. . They can be attracted to men on a first date. But there is a fundamental difference between men and women when they experience the "love at first sight" romance. For men, often it is visual, sexual, without emotional attachment. Therefore it can go quickly. While for women, "the love at first sight" is the emotion, it is the love. There is emotional attachment. Unfortunately once the emotion dominates the mind, normal judgment stops working well, a result from which many women suffer from disappointment and hurt.
