

Meeting real people for real relationship.

Newsletter August 2019

Time flies. Without realising, more than half of the year has gone. Are you still single, looking for that special person for your life? It won't hurt to check about us.

Metro Personal Consultants is an off-line matchmaking agency. We introduce local Asian women to men of all races. Most of our women are permanent residents, or Australian citizens. Many are educated, speaking fluent English. We have offices in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth.

Unlike online dating, our clients are real and genuine people. We've met and know them. Therefore, our service is safe and personal.

In addition to the personal introductions, we often organise various functions, where people can meet and socialise.

If you don't want to waste time online, or in the club, or even street, please call us today. Our friendly consultants love to talk to you and show you the people we have.

Why was it not working? (—)

Human emotion is an interesting thing. It lives in our daily life and influences our decisions, our judgement, our relationship with others and even the goals we want to achieve. Almost every day, we need to deal with our emotions, maintaining the balance of our emotions, adjusting our emotional response according to the circumstances. We can say: without emotion, there will be no life.

Talking about emotion, we can't avoid the word of "love" between a man and a woman. Life with love is easy, happy and fulfilled. At least movies and novels tell us about that. On the other hand, without love, life can be dull, miserable. People can feel empty from the heart. I think everyone knows this. But the reality is many people are searching for love, or many people obtained love, but then lost it. Searching and losing love can be a frustrating, or hurtful experience.

In order to take a short cut, people searched for an answer from a horoscope, or fortune tellers, etc. However, it didn't help them very well. Sometimes the horoscope said to people: "this horoscope is good for you", but at the end, it was a disaster.

Finding love is an inside job more than outside. Apart from the initial chemistry, two people must have similarities in many things, including their characters, values, attitudes, etc. For example, they must have:

1. Similar values towards money, love and a relationship;
2. Mutual appreciation for each other's strengths and weaknesses. Mutual appreciation for what they receive from each other. Never take anything for granted
3. Team work for the same goal.
4. Strong resistance to temptation, including money, business opportunity, opposite sex, etc.
5. Good communication skills and attitudes.

The things listed above are almost fundamental for a relationship. The similarities of those things can help couples to cope with their differences, to stand firm when challenges come, and to cherish each other, therefore, to make their love each other deeper and more profound. On the other hand, many couples couldn't achieve any agreement for the above. In life, they have constant challenges. They argue a lot. They keep complaining about each other. They take each other for granted. With time, they drift apart. By the end, they don't need any substantial reason to separate. Then the separation, from the family and children, the loss of money, and people deeply hurt.

In the next few articles, I will explore each of the above characters and explain why a good relationship can't last if two people have no similarities, or do not agree with the above characteristics. I hope the articles can raise the awareness for singles when they select a partner, or afterwards, when they enter into a committed relationship.
